

Jake Gyllenhaal was chatting for quite some time in the Kodak Theatre lobby with actress Rachel McAdams before the Academy Awards and it must have been pretty stimulating since he introduced her to a friend saying, "This is Rachel McAdams, she's the mother of my child!"

On Sunday night, the Academy Awards left out Farrah Fawcett and Bea Arthur from the ceremony's Memorial Montage, which pays tribute to the stars who passed away during the year. It must be causing quite a stir, because Bruce Davis, the executive director of the Academy, has released a statement attempting to justify the snub: "It is the single most troubling element of the Oscar show every year. Because more people die each year than can possibly be included in that segment. You are dropping people who the public knows. It's just not comfortable."

Simon Cowell is no longer in denial, he says yep he's getting married but doesn't know when the big day will be just yet, there's been no date set.

5,000 moms were polled at BabyCenter.com on their most and least favorite celebrity baby names, and Sarah Michelle Gellar and Freddie Prinze, Jr.'s 5-month old, Charlotte Grace, won most favorite with 49% of the vote. A far second place favorite was Jennifer Garner and Ben Affleck's Seraphina Rose Elizabeth at 12%, and Nicole Richie and Joel Madden's Sparrow James Midnight was named the least popular.
